

Pageqatar: One of the Most Promising Business Destinations in the Middle East

Qatar occupies the Qatar Peninsula in the Middle East. It is known locally as Dawlat Qaatar and is an Arab Emirate: small but highly prosperous. It faces the Persian Gulf and has Saudi Arabia as its land neighbor. It is a monarchy and gained freedom from the British Protectorate in 1971. Its vast oil and natural gas reserves paved the way for prosperity, with Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani being the ruling Emir. All positions of importance are occupied by members of the Thani family.

Prosperity led the way to increased infrastructure and business development in the small country, populated by only 300000 people or so, and today it rivals any European city in its looks, architecture and facilities. After the UAE, Qatar leads in economic development in this region. It is the USA's fifth largest export marketing this region. The State is investing heavily in development of the economy.

As it has a stable government in place and an environment conducive to trade, it is not surprising that the country is progressing rapidly on the economic front. While oil and gas drive its economy, the government is seeking to broaden its economic structure and develop a knowledge based economy. It has established the Qatar Science and Technology Park to attract entrepreneurs from abroad, leading to a strong financial market.

Entrepreneurs may not find the atmosphere as liberal as in the UAE but Doha and Qatar are home to international businesses and there is ample scope for commercial activities. Finding the right source, the right partner or buyer can become extremely easy when you advertise on or refer to a country specific online business directory. There are quite a few such online business directories on the web, specifically related to Qatar.

These online business directories are especially helpful since all information is specifically categorized and one can enter search terms and find exactly the information one needs. They work like the yellow pages and business director in Doha, Qatar, for local businesses and also for people across the world wishing to do business with any entity in the country. An online business directory like Page Qatar will have the information categorized according to type of business with sub-categories, according to name and alphabetically so searches are easy and fast. It also pays to list one's business to receive inquiries from this economically advanced region and develop business.
